METHODIST MAGAZINE AND REVIEW

W. H. Withrow, M. A., D. D., F.R.S.C., Editor.

Vol. LIII, 1901.

REV. JOHN HUNT

By the death of the Rev. John Hunt passed away another of the venerable fathers of Canadian Methodism. He was born eighty-three years ago in what we may call the native county of Methodism, Lincolnshire. John Hunt, the famous Fiji missionary, was the son of his father's brother. The pathway of the cousins lay far apart, but each served his generation by the will of God. Coming to Canada with his parents in his fourteenth year, our John Hunt spent twelve years in the hard work of clearing and working a farm about fifteen miles from Toronto. Deprived of early educational advantages, he was, according to opportunity, a diligent student and throughout life a voracious reader. After his conversion and inward call to the ministry he was wont to fasten his Greek grammar to the plough handles, and so mastered the key to the New Testament in the original. To the very last he was a diligent reader of the best literature. We have a letter written on his death-bed describing, in detail, the pleasure and profit he derived from recent reviews we had the pleasure of furnishing him.

His ministry was chiefly in western Ontario, and since the union, in Toronto Conference. He spent fifty-seven years in faithful ministry. He served seven years as financial secretary and also as chairman of his district, and with scarce an exception remained the full possible limit on his circuits.

REV. JOHN HUNT (con't).

In old age he shamed many a younger man by his diligence and zeal in the Master's service. For several years he was chaplain to the Methodist patients in five Toronto hospitals, visiting them daily when strength permitted, and often going in the middle of the night to minister to the sick and the dying. Testimony has reached us from the patients of the unspeakable blessing his faithful, sympathetic ministry was. There are many hundreds of persons throughout Canada who cherish with deepest gratitude the memory of this service of love. When himself a very sick man, at the call of suffering he felt that "the poor in body and estate, must not on man's convenience wait," and would up and away in any weather to the bedside of the dying. His sick-room was an ante-chamber of heaven. Surrounded by love and sympathy he passed from the toil and travail of earth to the rest and rapture of the skies.

MRS. SUSAN HUNT, OF BRAMPTON.

Another of the links which connect the present generation of the members of our communion with the past is broken, in removal of Mrs. Hunt from the Church Militant to the Church Triumphant.

Our departed sister Hunt was born in Lincoln, England, in the year 1780, and savingly converted to God in the year 1811. She, without hesitation or delay, united with the Wesleyan Methodist Church, of which she remained a faithful and consistent member, until her Master released her from the trial of mortality, and took her home to her reward in Heaven. She has left an aged companion, our brother John Hunt, of Brampton, (formerly of Toronto Township,) for many years a consistent and useful member and local preacher in the church, and two children, the Rev. John Hunt, of Yonge Street, and Mrs. Armour, of Brampton, to mourn over their bereavement, but they sorrow not as those without hope. She is not dead but taken to a better country.

She departed this life January 2, 1859, in the 79th year of her age, having lived and laboured for God, as a member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church for 48 years.

The den is a burrow in a hollow log or among rocks. The young are usually born in the first half of April, blind and helpless, covered with close, dark, ash-coloured fur. There may be anywhere from three to ten, although five to seven is the usual number.

Coyotes and howling are somehow synonymous in the popular mind. Most of its calls are signals to its companions but one of them are for pure pleasure, such as the Evening Song, a series of short, sharp barks growing into a long scull. Several singing at once sound like a hundred wolves according to Ernest Thompson Seton. He says that the inter-communication of ideas between brush wolves is well developed, such as the smell-telephone with smelling points. They also convey ideas by example. They are not, however, gregarious.
